Analysis of slip perturbation development in scenarios of intersecting faults through distinct element analysis

Nicholas Thompson\textsuperscript{1,2}, Peter Zweigel\textsuperscript{3} \textsuperscript{1}NTNU, \textsuperscript{2}Statoil ASA, Trondheim (current), \textsuperscript{3}Statoil ASA, Stjørdal

- Slip perturbation – Deviation of individual slip vectors (pitch) away from mean slip vector of fault; result of kinematic fault interaction

- Extension of Pascal (2002) to: A) consider full range of geometric and anisotropic stress tensor scenarios; B) efficiently summarize scenarios of slip perturbation development and causative mechanisms

- Discuss methods, simulation suite, general notable observations

- Example – Dependency on fault intersection angle, influences convergent/divergent slip