

Eline Meek Allern / Herøy Museum / Theatre group Fyret

Eline Meek Allern is a librarian who now works in Helgeland museums section in Herøy. After moving to a small homestead on the island of Herøy she reconnected with nature, and the traditional relationship between people, birds, and nature. In the work at the museum, she is passionate about connecting the present to the past and future. Currently working on a project about eider duck keeping, aiming to connect the children of Herøy to the tradition of keeping and taking care of eider ducks and our surroundings.

The museum of Herøy is located on the historic farm connected to the Church of Herøy, often referred to as Helgeland Cathedral built in the 12th century. The collection highlights the island life: Farming, fishing, and gathering. <https://helgelandmuseum.no/besokssted/heroy-bygdesamling/>
